KRAMER CIGARETTES ARE INTRODUCED AS EVIDENCE

Various Brands Made by Ware-Kramer Company Exhibited in Case Against Tobacco Trust---Judge Connor Scores Cigarette Smokers.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, June 21.—In closing the cross-examination of this afternoon of Vice President Kramer, of the Ware-Kramer Company, in the Ware-Kramer Company suit against the American Tobacco Company boxes of Kramer cigarettes were introduced for the jury to inspect and various lawyers were jokingly asked to name their favorite brands. In the midst of much merriment Judge Connor facetiously remarked "every one of you who have cigarettes ought to be indicted for carrying deadly weapons."

H. M. Kramer, of Durham, son of Vice President Samuel Kramer, and salesman for the Ware-Kramer Company in North Carolina, was placed on the witness stand this afternoon and told of building up an extensive trade for "White Rolls" in Charlotte, Winston-Salem, Concord, Wilmington, Greensboro, Durham, Asheville and other towns and said that the American Tobacco Company's free goods, rebates, coupons and other concessions injured the "White Rolls" trade to such an extent that it was reduced to 10 per cent. of its former proportions.

On cross-examination Mr. Kramer admitted writing his factory that he had found that hard cigarettes and not coupons caused the complaint against "White Rolls" at Washington. He admitted that he had quantities of sample cigarettes distributed, about half to consumers and the rest to retailers and jobbers for pushing the Ware-Kramer goods. He admitted that he had received a letter from F. D. Ware telling him that the anti-trust fight in the North Carolina legislature would help wonderfully the business of the Ware-Kramer Company and advising him to talk anti-trust law and the terrible oppression of the trust in North Carolina all he could.

Samuel Kramer's Testimony.

Raleigh, June 21.—Samuel Kramer, of Ware-Kramer Tobacco Co., spent today on the witness stand under vigorous cross-examination in the million two hundred thousand dollar damage suit of Ware-Kramer Co. vs. American Tobacco Co. The confidential business letters of Kramer to the home office of Ware-Kramer Co. as sales manager that the A. T. Co. has sprung on the plaintiff again figured as a bludgeon in the hands of Attorney Parker, as cross-examiner for the defense. The resumption of cross-examination opened with adroit elicitation from Mr. Kramer that he pushed his own goods, made no attempt to discredit those of his competitors to stand or fall on the merit of his goods and that he learned this from the American Tobacco Co. during the period he was with them. Then Parker waded into the reading of letters that Kramer had written Ware-Kramer Co. from numerous points in Southern territory and reciting trade conditions and transactions on his part that included giving free goods, gratis deals, extra samples and special discounts, the latter paid to jobbers with his personal checks and entered on "private books" of Ware-Kramer Co., Norfolk. There were letters from Durham, Atlanta, Harrisburg, West, Ga., Richmond and numerous other points showing, as the counsel for the defense characterized it, that plaintiff is at least "tarred with the same stick" when it comes to the charges of trust methods of fighting for trade. There were letters to the effect, too, that the decline in the sale of White Rolls was not for lack of distribution among jobbers and retailers, but from failure of consumers to call for them. There were complaints to the home office about White Rolls being too mild and a demand among consumers for stronger smokers that was being met by trust Piedmonts.

During the continued cross-examination of Samuel Kramer, in the damage suit of Ware-Kramer Co. vs. American Tobacco Co. today the part of the Kramer testimony yesterday in which he set out that the ruin of the Ware-Kramer goods on the market was due in part to the trust selling Piedmonts below the cost of manufacture was ordered stricken out because he admitted today that he did not know what it cost to make Piedmonts or other trust brands of cigarettes. Also that a part of his testimony in which he said A. T. Co. had sold Piedmonts at $2.72 was stricken out on admission that his information as to this was hearsay. He admitted writing a number of letters to jobbers advising them to keep A. T. Co. goods out of their stock and pushing White Rolls. He insisted that his payment of special rebates to jobbers with his personal checks as shown in the letters sprung on him by the defense, was not a part of a secret system of rebating such as they were charging the A. T. Co. with, but was a matter of convenience for himself and that these concessions were forced upon them in self-defense in effort to meet competition. Letters as to such deals were read from Americus, Macon, Ga., and from other points in his Southern territory. The allowances were to individual jobbers and were not general and were to stimulate the jobber in pushing the White Rolls.

As to a letetr from Wilson in which he stated that seventeen cases of goods refused by dealers had been returned to the A. T. Co., he insisted that his information was on general report about the town. This was to refute intimation that he had pried into shipment transactions just as they were accusing the Trust through espionage.

Mr. Kramer had known of coupons being taken out of packages of cigarettes by retailers and this had been done with the White Rolls in many instances to injure their standing with the consumer, notably in Charlotte at the railway news stand. A letter from Richmond that he had written the Norfolk office January 10, 1907, was to the effect that White Rolls were well distributed but going slow. He explained that jobbers were cutting prices on Piedmonts but holding White Rolls at regular price. From Harrisburg, Va., he wrote his home office that he had loaded the town with free goods to block the coming of A. T. Co. salesmen to that town to push their goods next week. This was in 1905.

POWDER TRUST IS ORDERED DISSOLVED

The Circuit Court of Deleware Declares it Combination in Restraint of Trade And in Violation Of the Sherman Anti-Trust Laws —Action Was Begun in 1907 Against 43 Defendants.

Special to Telegram.

Wilmington, Del., June 21.—The United States Circuit Court of the district of Delaware today handed down a decision declaring the powder trust, dominated by the E. I. Du Pont De Nemourse Company, a combination in restraint of interstate commerce in powder and other explosives and in violation of Section 1 of the Sherman Anti-trust law and that it attempted to monopolize and has monopolized a part of such commerce in violation of Section 2 of the same law.

The court decrees that the combination shall be enjoined from continuing this violation and that the trust shall be dissolved.

The action against the powder trust was begun by the government in 1907 and was directed against 43 corporate and individual defendants. The suit as to 15 of the defendants was dismissed because some of the concerns are out of existence, or because it was not shown that they were parties to the combination.

GARY ADMITS STEEL MEN ARE PLANNING WORLD COMBINATION

New York, June 21.—On the Lucania, sailing today to attend the International Convention of Steel Manufacturers in Brussels, Judge Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the Steel Trust, admitted that this concern is planning a world combination in that industry. He denied that any attempt to control prices was contemplated. Judge Gary said that the condition of the steel trade is good.

CALEB HANES TO BE PLACED ON TRIAL TOMORROW

Was Arraigned on Criminal Assault Charge Yesterday in Superior Court.

But few cases were disposed of in Superior Court yesterday and none of these were of especial importance. This morning the case against David P. Green, the charge being seduction under promise of marriage, will be taken up.

Yesterday at 12:30 o'clock Caleb Hanes was brought into court and arraigned on the charge of criminal assault. The case was set for Friday morning and a special venire of 75 men were ordered summoned to select the jury from. The case is a capital one and if convicted Hanes will receive a death sentence.

The case against Clifton Suggs, the young man from High Point charged with embezzlement, resulted in a mistrial, the jury reporting after a night's deliberation that they were unable to agree upon a verdict . The majority of the jurors were for an acquittal, however. The case was continued until the next term of court.

Lula Robins was found not guilty of the charge of perjury.

The case against W. H. Taylor, charging false pretense, was continued until the next term.

Alex Williams and Charlie Blacklie were found guilty of carrying concealed weapons and sentenced to thirty days each on the roads. Robert Reives was acquitted of the charge of larceny.

Frank Pennington, colored, of High Point, was tried on the charge of abandonment. The case was hard fought and consumed some little time. After deliberating for some little time the jury returned a verdict of guilty.

MANUFACTURERS OF DANGEROUS DRUGS DENOUNCED BY TAFT

Special to Telegram.

Washington, June 21.—In a special message prepared in New York and transmitted today through the White House to Congress President Taft denounced the manufacturers of dangerous drugs as frauds, and urged Congress at this session to amend the pure food and drugs law and to strengthen vital points, the weakness of which has been indicated by decisions of the Supreme court. Representative Sherley, of Kentucky, has already introduced a bill bearing on this subject.

REGULARS LOST CONTROL OF THE SENATE YESTERDAY

Progressive Republicans And Democrats Join in Instructing Finance Committee to Make Early Report on Wool Bill From House.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, June 21.—The progressive Republicans and Democrats today secured control of the Senate when, by a vote of 39 to 18, the Senate referred the House wool tariff revision bill to the finance committee with orders to report back not later than July 10. Such instructions are most unusual.

The new combination demands a general downward revision of the tariff and the finance committee's control in the Senate is endangered. The motion instructing the finance committee to make an early report was made by Senator Gore, of Oklahoma. Sixteen Republicans voted with the Democrats. Of these Senators Jones, Nelson and Townsend have been considered in the regular majority.

The opinion tonight is that the reciprocity pact will surely be passed as will the farmers free list bill and any similar measure the House may send over.

Senator Penrose had called a meeting of the finance committee for 10:30 a. m. tomorrow. He threatens to report the wool bill and the farmers free list adversely without further consideration in the committee.

HUNDRED NEW DOCTORS IN THIS STATE

Of 130 Taking Examinations 101 Were Able to Pass—North State College Men Made Good Records —Names of The Successful Ones Who Will Practice Their Profession.

Charlotte, June 21.—The State Board of Medical Examiners, of which Dr. H. H. Dodson of Greensboro is President, has announced the names of those who passed the examination for license to practice medicine in North Carolina.

Of 130 who took the examinations 101 passed the board successfully. Of the 130 applicants for license 112 took the regular examination, nine took the oral examination and nine were granted reciprocity. Reciprocity is granted to physicians of distinction who come here from other states. Those granted this courtesy were Drs. F. W. Griffith, of Asheville; S. D. Craig, of Winston-Salem; P. O. Schallert, of Winston-Salem; M. W. Newcombe, of Burlington, N. J.; William F. Grigg, of Oriental; Harlan Shoemaker, of Shelby; R. S. Cautherton, of Charlotte; L. E. McLaughlin, of Winston-Salem; C. B. Marshburn, of Bonifay, Fla.

The highest grades attained by any of those who took the examinations were three men who had studied at the University of Pennsylvania. They were Drs. William Blair Hunter, of Gastonia, 95 2-7; W. P. Jacobs, of Philadelphia, but a native of North Carolina, 94 2-7; T. Grier Miller, of Statesville, 94. The next highest grades were by two men of the North Carolina Medical College. Orin Moore and T. G. Whitney, each with a grade of 93.

The North Carolina Medical College students made a specially fine record before the board and one that reflects great credit on the institution. Twenty-three men from the college took the examination and 22 of them passed successfully.

The list of successful applicants is as follows:

John H. Adcock, New York; N. H. Andrews, Bine; J. E. Anthony, Gastonia; Thomas B. Ayers, Rowland; M. L. Barefoot, Dunn; A. C. B. Brenizer, Charlotte; J. C. Bagley, Fayetteville; B. S. Bazemore, Windsor; S. B. Boon, Jackson; E. S. Bullock, Wilmington; J. W. Bradshaw, Relief; B. F. Butler; T. W. Blanchard, Gilden; M. A. Bowers, Thomasville; E. B. Beasley, Colerain; J. E. T. Carter, Wards Hill; J. H. Cutchin, Whitaker; G. S. Cox, Dorthan; V. F. Crouch, Jennings; B. D. Caughman, Columbia, S. C.; M. P. Cummings, Reidsville; T. W. Carmichael, Rowland; L. T. Delancy, Raleigh; E. L. Dameron, Bessemer; C. J. Ellen, Battleboro; L. D. Floyd, Green Sea, S. C.; T. B. Gold, Lattimore; John R. Gamble, Crumpler; B. H. Hackney, Bynus; J. R. Hawkins, Oxford; M. C. Horton, Brooklyn; S. S. Hutchison, Mount Gilead; W. B. Hunter, Gastonia; Harry Harrison, Statesville; William T. Head, Melvin Hill; S. J. Hawes, Athinson; H. B. Ivey, La Grange; W. L. Jackson, Greensboro; William P. Jackson, Windsor; Lee Johnson, Asheville; William J. Jacocks, Philadelphia; E. J. Judd, New Hill; T. C. Kearns, Salisbury; C. E. Kernodle, Altamahaw; O. R. Keiger, Tobaccoville; P. H. Lee, Union Springs, Ala.; Oren Moore, Charlotte; T. C. Miller, Statesville; R. A. Moore, Rural Hall; A. A. Mendez, Brooklyn, N. Y.; A. D. Morgan, Mooresville; A. H. Myers, North Wilkesboro; M. D. McMillan, Red Springs; A. M. McCuister, Winston-Salem; J. S. Norman, Bladenboro; G. M. Naff, Huntdale; H. H. Powell, Auburn; W. I. Pitts, Tarboro; J. DeJ. Pemberton, Fayetteville; T. E. Person, Fremont; R. L. Payne, Monroe; F. O. Plunkett, Greensboro; John A. Patterson, Shelby; M. C. Palmer, Tryon; S. S. Quittner, New York; J. G. Raby, Ahoskie; A. S. Root, Raleigh; J. L. Ranson, Charlotte; J. F. Riter, Fontana; J. Milton Russell, Canton; J. T. Ramsey, Newell; W. P. Spears, Cana; R. E. Stack, Bakersville; J. W. Squires, Charlotte; Colin Shaw, Mayesville; C. W. Scott, Washington, D. C.; George W. Shipp, Newton; William N. Thomas, Oxford; H. L. Timmons, Fayetteville; N. P. Liles, Wadesboro; C. M. Whitaker, Enfield; L. K. Walker, Currie; William E. Wishart, Charlotte; J. C. Wilkins, Burlington; R. V. Yorkley, Lexington.

CORONATION FESTIVITIES ARE AT HEIGHT

Special to Telegram.

London, June 21.—The coronation frenzy is at its height and the unusually demonstrative English seem almost demented under the spell of the medieval ceremonial and the assembling of notables from all quarters of the globe to honor King George.

The Americans are more numerous than ever. J. Pierpont Morgan paid $5,000 for two floors of the Gloucester House, John Jayes Hammond dined with the King and Queen tonight as the guest of Duke Connaught. Hammond was loudly cheered when he appeared on the street.

MILLIONS OF ENVELOPES FOR THE GOVERNMENT.

Washington, June 21.—No less than four hundred million envelopes will be needed during the next few years to carry on the correspondence of the government service. This estimate was made by Postmaster General Hitchcock, who closed a contract today for the envelopes with a Cincinnati firm, the present contractors.

The contract will amount to approximately $233,556, a saving to the government of $25,000, or about 9 per cent. as compared with the present price.

JEWS ENDORSE TAFT FOR ANOTHER PRESIDENCY.

Washington, June 21.—The endorsement of the orthodox Jewish congregation of this city for his renomination for the presidency and his election in 1912 was accorded President Taft last night, the meeting was attended by Chief Rabbis Margolis, of New York, and Levinthal, of Philadelphia, as well as many other prominent Jews at Washington.

Several speeches in praise of Mr. Taft's policy as exhibited towards the Jews were made.

SOUTHERN MAN FOR PRESIDENT.

The Norfolk Landmark believes that Woodrow Wilson is the choice of the Democratic voters of Virginia for nominee for President. The Landmark says, however, that any good man with the ability to lead the party will receive Virginia's electoral vote. The latter statement is undoubtedly true. Any man who can secure the Democratic nomination will be assured of Virginia's vote; but the Norfolk paper states in this connection that Wilson is favored, presumably by the paper and by Virginians, not only because he is a Virginian by birth but because it is believed that the time has come for nominating a Southern man for President on the Democratic ticket.

The movement to nominate a Southern man for President appears at this time more likely of realization than at any time in the past. For several decades there has been talk prior to presidential campaigns of insisting upon the nomination of a man from this section of the country. It has been urged that as this section has furnished practically all the electoral votes given the Democratic candidates during the past sixteen years, it should be recognized in naming the candidates for President and Vice President. The argument was reasonable and logical and is still sound, despite the fact that the party is certain to secure electoral votes next year in States which for almost two decades have not voted Democratic. Since the war between the States the South has been solidly Democratic and always certain to vote that way. Despite this fact this section has been without representation on the ticket for the two highest positions in the gift of the people. The movement now for the nomination of a Southern man is especially timely in view of the undoubted availability of the candidate proposed.

Governor Wilson now appears to have the best chance for securing the nomination of any man proposed; and his chance of election, if nominated, is equally as good. While Wilson is not a citizen of a Southern State, he is a Southerner, and his nomination would be altogether satisfactory to citizens of this section who honestly desire to see a Southern man called to the leadership of the party. The fact that he is a resident of an Eastern State should increase his availability and cause him to prove stronger politically, perhaps, than if he resided in the South.

Governor Wilson will not be nominated, however, without the united effort of the Southern States. He will have a following in other sections and with a solid South advocating his nomination, it can be secured; but with the South divided, it is doubtful if he can be nominated. In the event of his defeat, the nomination might go to Champ Clark, who is a Southern man; and no doubt the electoral votes of all the Southern States would be cast for Clark as cheerfully as they would be given to Wilson; but Clark does not measure up to Wilson in ability and would not be as strong candidate as Wilson.

Wilson is undoubtedly the most available and ablest man the South has had to put forward for the Presidential nomination in many years; and while nobody in the South desires to make the nomination of the party's candidate a sectional issue, it is but fair and just and reasonable that the section which furnishes most of the votes even in Democratic years, should be consulted and its wishes respected at least once in half a century in naming the Democratic standard bearer.

By all the rules of reason and right the South is entitled to have one of her sons given the first place on the ticket when she can offer such a man as Woodrow Wilson; and it ought not to be difficult for the voters and leaders of this section to see that the nomination of Wilson can be effected by a solid Wilson delegation in the convention from this part of the country. At present it seems that a majority of the Southern States are for Wilson and he is leading the race for the nomination; but a get-together movement for Wilson in the South may be necessary in order to secure his nomination. If a Democrat can be elected President next year, Wilson can be elected; and while there are other Democrats who can probably win and for whom the South will vote, if one of them is nominated, there is no good reason why this section should not support Woodrow Wilson in the convention.

The tobacco trust's crop of raw material will be short this year.

Asks the Columbia State: "Did Theodore Roosevelt ever fatally swat a fly?" Don't know about that; but Theodore is one of this country's flyest swatters.

Sarah Bernhardt says she is never ill and that if a doctor tells her to do anything to preserve her health she never does it. Perhaps the latter statement offers the real explanation of the fact that Madame Bernhardt is never ill.

It is announced that the Georgia peach crop is larger than was expected. If the Wilmington Dispatch is to be regarded as reliable when it speaks of such things the crop of "peaches" at Wrightsville Beach is, also, a record breaker this season.

Senator Root has spent most of the years of his life in trying to block the wheels of progress and there is no good reason for supposing that he will change front at this late day. Root and reaction might be used as a battlecry for the standpatters.

Diaz says he would absolutely refuse to return to Mexico for any consideration. The old man got away with several millions of wealth, so why should he return? He can live comfortably for a few years in a foreign country and die a natural death, all of which he would be unable to do should he return to Mexico.

The cotton manufacturers of New England are to celebrate the two hundredth anniversary of the founding of this industry in that section. However, when the question of protection for their industry arises, the manufacturers of New England always insist that cotton manufacturing is in its infancy in this country.

Speaking of watering trust stock—the paper trust, the concern which controls the supply of paper on which the newspapers of the country are printed, has the art of watering stock down fine. Not even sugar trust stock has a larger proportion of water; and the consumers of sugar are not being robbed to the extent true of the users of paper.

Some talk to the effect that the lumber trust is to be made to walk the plank is floating around in the newspapers. The Columbia State, the Wilmington Dispatch, the Greenville Piedmont, and other hardened offenders are the guilty parties. The attention of this coterie is directed to a fact which is as clear as a heart pine shingle—the lumber trust will be able to "tote its end of the log."

Greenville Piedmont thinks that free wool would mean cheaper socks. What we want in the South, however, is cheaper cotton socks, as that is the material of which most of the socks worn down this way are made. We probably cannot have cheaper cotton socks without lowering the price of the raw material, and an attempt to do that would certainly create opposition in South Carolina, where the chief crops are cotton and rice.

Woodrow Wilson believes that the daddy of all the monopolies in this country is the money monopoly. That is correct. Great aggregations of capital are necessary to the control of the great business interests of the country. Without almost unlimited money no man or set of men could control the steel industry of the country, the iron market of the country, the tobacco business or the oil business of the country. Unquestionably the trust system of this country is based upon money and it is maintained by the power of money—by the power of money to buy up or crush competition and by money's power to control legislation and the enforcement of the laws.

Spartanburg has adopted the "trade excursion" as a means for getting in touch with the people of the towns in that city's territory, and a party of Spartanburg business men are on a three days' trip which will extend into this State and as far west as Asheville. The journey will cover considerable sections of the two Carolinas. The 'trade excursion" is not a new plan, but it continues to work well. It is somewhat new in this section of the country and in the South, having been used by Nashville, Tenn., perhaps with better results than have been secured by any other southern city. Nashville has had annual "trade boosting excursions" for several years, has entered into the movement in a large way, and has succeeded in making the plan profitable.

VANITY, THY NAME IS—

(By VIRGINIA HARLAN.)

If there is one sin from which the average man considers himself free, it is the sin of vanity. Vanity, he firmly believes, is the prerogative of women. Women are vain, dear creatures, he will tell his wife or sweetheart, while he fondly pinches her cheek.

The wife or sweetheart is generally too wise to correct him, but there never was a woman yet who did not wonder at the marvelous vanity of man.

As a matter of fact, there is scarcely any difference between men and children in this respect. A child with a new pair of shoes will not rest content until everybody in the house has gone into raptures over both shoes and wearer, separately and together. And a man's method of attracting notice to his splendor—to women—hardly less simple.

Women, on the contrary, are singularly free from vanity.

You laugh and point to my lady's mirrors, and her habit of looking in them at every possible moment. My dear young man, you do not understand. A woman will take infinite pains to dress herself to please somebody she loves—although he seldom notices—or to annoy somebody she hates. But she never admires herself in the way a young man admires his invisible moustache.

Men, too, are free from a terrifying danger which hangs over a woman from the age of 14 to the age of 90 or so—the criticism of other women. How terrifying this may be men can seldom understand.

A man may wear a battered straw hat forever and ever, and go about in shabby trousers on Sunday, and his friends will not think it worth while to notice; whereas a woman dare not have a button out of place without all the ladies in the district noticing it. Hence the agony of mind that a woman suffers if she thinks her back hair is coming down is not at all due to vanity. And hence the mirrors which thoughtful shopkeepers provide so abundantly.

Even when you come to pretty girls, who might very well be excused for having their heads turned, there is no approach to the vanity of the lady-killing youth. A pretty girl takes her prettiness as a gift from the fairies, to be tended as the gardener tends a beautiful plant. It is her duty, a necessity to her self-respect, to look nice.

Contrast her with the average handsome man. Here you have vanity so monumental that a woman can only gasp. To his lady friends the handsome boy invariably adopts a sorry-my-dear-you-love-me-but-I-can't-help-it-you-know tone of voice, which at first makes a sensible girl want to slap him, then amuses her, and then makes her yawn. But he never changes. He is the same year after year; and though he considers himself such a superior being, he is always as anxious to attract the attention of washerwomen as that of duchesses.

A woman will carry her beauty as it should be carried, neither scorning it nor worshiping it. The handsome man loses his head early in life, and never finds it again.

Sense in Short Sentences

There is little beauty in the lives of those women who are drawn into the gay circles of fashionable life, whose arena is public display, to whom their own home seems a prison, they are so eager to get away from it. At home, in the inner sanctuary of home life, woman appears in her true glory.

"I know of nothing more sad than a child's face with lines upon it."—Bishop of Chichester.

Not until we are ready to throw our very life's love into the troublesome little things can we be really faithful in that which is least and faithful also in much. Every day that dawns brings something to do which can never be done as well again.

Idleness creates imaginary want without the capacity to gratify it.

The good we have received from a man should make us bear with the ill he does us.

Those who wish well towards their relatives and friends disdain to please them with words that are not true.

Patience has hardly an equal for the proof it gives of self mastery. It implies first of all a willingness to be misunderstood. It rebels against the modern idea of standing up for one's rights, and keeps only in view the single purpose and the honest desire of the heart.

In music haste always spells ruin.

Some people turn a thought like they do a coat, so that they may use it several times.

Every ordinary man is apt to think he is one of the exceptions.

MR TAFT ON MARRIED LIFE.

President's Recipe for Obtaining Genuine Happiness.

On the eve of his silver anniversary the President (unofficially) made known the secret of a quarter of a century of wedded happiness and success. His recipe is:

"Absolute and positive love for one another at the beginning.

"Ambition on the part of both for the success of the family, with an equal abundance of energy on the part of both to carry out the ambition. 'Team work.'

"Manliness and womanliness, combined with magnanimity. Never a single swerving from this course.

"Directness in all relations with one another and those with whom social, political or business intercourse is had.

"Never be subservient to anything mean or underhanded. Have moral courage to reject anything and everything requiring subservience.

"Unselfishness in all relations with mankind, and a readiness to meet and treat with all humanity.

"A continuance and growth of the devotion for one another possessed in the beginning."—New York World.

The Spur of Ambition

Ambition hath but two steps; the lowest, blood; the highest, envy.—Lilly.

We frequently pass from love to ambition, but one seldom returns from ambition to love.—Rochefoucauld.

.....there is a fire and motion of the soul, But once kindled, quenches evermore.—Byron.

Most people would succeed in small things if they were not troubled with great ambitions.—Longfellow.

Proud-crested fiend, the world's worst foe, ambition.—Bloomfield.

Ambition thinks no face so beautiful as that which looks from under a crown. —Sir P. Sidney.

Ambition is the germ from which all growth of nobleness proceeds.—T. D. English.

It is by the attempt to reach the top at a single leap somuch misery is produced in the world.—Cobbett.

Ambition often puts men upon doing the meanest offices; so climbing is performed in the same posture with creeping.—Swift.

The tallest trees are most in the power of the wind, and ambitious men of the blasts of fortune.—William Penn.

One may easily enough guard against ambition till five-and-twenty. It is not ambition's day.—Shenstone .

Ambition, like love, can abide no lingering; and ever urgeth on his own successes, hating nothing but what may stop them.—Sir P. Sidney.

Neither love nor ambition, as it has often been shown, can brook a division of its empire in the heart.—Bovee.

It is observed by Cicero, that men of the greatest and most shining parts are most actuated by ambition.—Addison.

The cheat ambition, eager to espouse dominion, courts it with a lying show, and shines in borrowed pomp to serve a turn.—Jeffrey.

"Why," asks the inquisitive person, "do you enjoy having someone tell you that you are pretty, when you know you are not? Does it make you believe that you are?"

"No," she answers readily. "But it makes me believe that he believes I am."

The Host (after a very meager dinner) —And when are you going to dine with me again?

Mr. Hearty—At once, if you like.

Household Hints

Wadding steeped in oil of pennyroyal is a good thing to keep away black beetles; so is a plentiful sprinkling of powdered borax.

To remove a scorch from linen cut an onion in half and rub the scorched part with it and then soak it in cold water. The scorch will very soon disappear.

For preventing windows steaming first clean them in the ordinary manner, then lightly rub all over with a cloth dipped in glycerine and polish.

To cure a feather boa that has been damaged with rain or dew, rub it well in common salt and shake before a bright fire until dry, when you will find it as good as new.

When the carpet broom begins to wear soft first wash the brush in warm soda and water, and then in cold; dry quickly, and you will find that the broom will get quite hard again.

Dip the loaf for a moment into milk or cold water and then place it in a hot oven for a few minutes. This will make it quite fresh again and it will be much more wholesome than new bread.

A LEADING CALIFORNIA DRUGGIST

Pasadena, Cal., March 9, 1911.

Foley and Co., Gentlemen:—We have sold and recommended Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for years. We believe it to be one of the most efficient expectorants on the market. Containing no opiates or narcotics it can be given freely to children. Enough of the remedy can be taken to relieve a cold, as it has no nauseating results, and does not interfere with digestion. Yours very truly, C. H. Ward Drug Co., C. L. Parsons, Sec'y and Treas." Get the original Foley's Honey and Tar Compound in the yellow package. For sale by Howard Gardner.

"What is the difference between firmness and obstinacy?" asked a young lady of her fiance.

"Firmness," was the gallant reply, "is a noble characteristic of women; obstinacy is a lamentable defect in men."

Wins Fight For Life.

It was a long and bloody battle for life that was waged by James B. Mershon, of Newark, N. J., of which he writes: "I had lost much blood from lung hemorrhages, and was very weak and run-down. For eight months I was unable to work. Death seemed close on my heels, when I began, three weeks ago, to use Dr. King's New Discovery. But it has helped me greatly. It is doing all that you claim." For weak, sore lungs, obstinate coughs, stubborn colds, hoarseness, la grippe, asthma, hay-fever or any throat or lung trouble its supreme. 50c. and $1. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Fariss-Klutz Drug Co.

"What is your ambition?"

"To be so well known in my own town that whenever I have a cold the papers will say that I'm threatened with pneumonia."

F. S. Rexford, 615 New York Life Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., says: "I had a severe attack of cold which settled in my back and kidneys and I was in great pain from my trouble. A friend recommended Foley Kidney Pills and I used two bottles of them and they have done me a world of good." For sale by Howard Gardner.

Servant (from next door)—Mr. De Nerves sends his compliments, and would you please shoot your dog as it keeps him awake?"

Mr. Bitem—Give my respects to Mr. De Nerves, and tell him I will greatly be his debtor if he will poison his daughter and burn her piano.

Odd Items of Interest

Now that Monaco has got its parliament, there are only two countries in the world without one—China and Morocco.

During the great anti-corn law agitation in England 70 years ago there were no fewer than five general elections in seven years.

After the abolition of the lords in 1649 a single chamber parliament existed till 1657, when the upper house was re-established.

Starlight does not fully account for the brightness of the moonless night sky, and a German astronomer concludes that it may be partly due to "earth light"—perhaps to a permanent aurora attending the earth. The light varies on different nights and on different hours of the same night. In Germany it seems to be from seven to 15 times the amount of mean starlight, but it is believed to be not so great everywhere.

During recent dredging operations off the coast of New Orleans the hull of an ancient submarine was found and brought ashore. The craft is about 16 feet long, five feet deep and four feet wide. It has two openings, the larger one big enough to admit a man; a propeller shaft at the narrow end and the remains of two fins. The propeller blades and the motive machinery have disappeared. The submarine probably dates from the time of the Civil War, as the Confederates are known to have had two submarines.

A Dreadful Wound

Miss Lovey Dove—"Yes, indeed; I should call it justice tempered with mercy."

A Charming Woman

is one who is lovely in face, form, mind and temper. But its hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always proves a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health. HEALTHY PLANTS
Require the Most Careful Attention as Well as Good Soil.

Did you ever see a rosebush which—despite the most beneficent environment of soil—of sunshine—and of atmosphere—seemed never to achieve a healthy growth.

A ton of manure will not help a plant that has a canker eating out its heart.

You must destroy the cause before you can remove the effect.

You cannot cure Dandruff and Baldness by rubbing on hair lotions and rubbing in vaseline, etc.

You must look to the cause of the trouble—it's a germ at the roots of your hair which causes it to fall out.

AN IRON DOG

By SUSANNE GLENN

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

"I haven't lived next door to the Rumfords 25 years for nothing, Jennie!"

Mrs. Grey emphasized her remark by an energetic placing of the tea kettle over the fire.

"Fred Rumford may be an improvement over some of them—I think myself he is some like his mother—and I don't know as we ought to blame him for being born a Rumford, but I do not want to see him lording it over my girls as every Rumford of them all has lorded it over his wife!"

"But Fred loves me, mother," expostulated Jennie, tearfully.

"I wish he had discovered it sooner," said keen-sighted Mrs. Grey. "He never showed you any attention until he needed a housekeeper. I'll say all I mean to say right now, Jennie, and then you must do as you think best.

"Fred is as hard and close as his father—why, they wouldn't keep a cat or dog two inches long on the place for fear one inch of it might be stomach. Fred's mother was always an awful coward, and was forever wanting a good watchdog. So one day her husband brought home the big iron dog. I happened to be over there when he came with it.

"'There, Milly,' he said, 'is the dog you've been wanting. It didn't cost no more than a live one. It will last a lifetime, and won't be eating off its own head every two or three months. And it will scare tramps and stray cats as well as any of them, I guess!'

"Poor Milly Rumford was mortified most to death. It gave her such an uncomfortable feeling that she never used the front porch again. But there at the corner of the house stands that ridiculous iron dog to this day, a monument to Rumford closeness!

"Maybe if Fred has some capable, determined woman, he might make a good husband, but he'd be the death of a little meek thing like you!"

An Uneasy Wonderment as to the Future.

Her duty done, Mrs. Grey closed her lips resolutely. Jennie must take her own chances if she persisted in them.

Though the girl remained true to her lover, she never saw the iron dog from that day without an uneasy wonderment as to the future.

"A month from today," she said a little shyly as they lingered one evening in the twilight, "you will have—me and Chris!" She laughed as a huge yellow cat sprang upon her shoulder.

"I want you, all right, Jennie," returned the young man, "but I don't think I have ever bargained for Chris."

"But that was understood, of course. You couldn't keep Chris away from me if he knew where I was!"

"We are not fond of cats at our house; they are entirely too useless. They are forever killing chickens and stealing meat; and if you want a mouse caught you have to set a trap. I guess if Chris gets troublesome about not staying home he'll have to be put out of the way!"

Rumford spoke with easy assurance. The girl realized that her lover's manner was unmistakably changing as the wedding day approached and his certainty of her increased. She clutched her pet protectingly, and her eyes looked defiant under cover of the dusk.

"Chris will be afraid of our dog," he added with a laugh, dropping down on a step near where the girl was seated.

"That reminds me, Fred," Jennie spoke in carefully pleasant tones, "I wish you would move that dog to some other part of the yard. It is so conspicuous right there beside the porch; and besides I want that spot spaded up for a flower border."

Fred Rumford was silenced for a moment by her sheer audacity. Then the vials of his displeasure overflowed generously.

"Well, I'd just like to have you hear what father would say if that dog was to be moved! It is a valuable ornament, and deserves a conspicuous place. And there is going to be no flower bed littering up the front yard. If you have a desire to fuss with growing things you can work in the garden at something profitable."

"I suppose I am to be a sort of servant then, with no privileges or voice in the management of affairs?" said Jennie gently.

Her very gentleness disconcerted the young man, and he sat in bewildered silence.

"I suppose you thought a wife would be less expensive than a housekeeper, especially as she would some day bring you a good farm, also?

"But understand one thing, Fred Rumford, I am not that wife! I can never call a place home where I cannot keep a pet or plant a flower or breathe a free breath."

With the utmost coolness she drew from her finger the inexpensive little ring and held it out to him.

"You must find some one else for the—position," she said, walking deliberately into the house.

If the girl felt any sorrow for the shattering of her dreams she concealed it admirably. She tended her flowers, petted the yellow cat ostentatiously, and watched to see Fred Rumford follow her advice.

But the utmost he did was to give the iron dog a new coat of shiny black paint that caused it to stand forth with increased conspicuousness. Never once in the months that followed did he acknowledge her existence by sign or word.

One beautiful spring day the cat Chris had failed to come to his dinner. Jennie, peering anxiously about the premises, heard a distressed cat voice from the Rumford front yard.

There, high up on a branch of the huge maple, sat Chris crying dismally.

What could be done? She was alone in the house; yet Chris must be rescued at any cost. He had recently been lamed in a trap, and some dog had evidently driven him up the tree.

With wildly beating heart, Jennie ventured into the neighboring yard.

"Come down, Kitty! Come down, Chris!" she coaxed cautiously, yet enticingly. But Chris, intimidated by his crippled state, glanced at his mistress and then at the fierce iron dog, and remained obdurate.

"Oh, you foolish creature, it is only an iron dog," she laughed at last, half ready to cry.

"Can I help you?" asked a familiar voice so near it made her start.

"Oh, do you think you could get him?" questioned the girl, flushing furiously, and pressing her hands against the tree for support.

For answer, he silently procured a ladder, mounted to the tree, and gently lifted the frightened Chris to his shoulder. Being a cat of wide experience, Chris allowed himself to be returned to his mistress' arms without a struggle.

"Thank you very much," murmured Jennie, feeling exceedingly uncomfortable. "I am so sorry to have made you so much trouble."

But Rumford laid his hand on the gate detainingly as she would have passed through.

"See here, Jennie, I've—I've wanted to talk with you, but I did not quite dare to presume upon calling."

The girl raised her eyes for a moment to his embarrassed face, and dropped them again, hastily.

"When you gave this back to me," he went on, taking from an inner pocket the little ring she had once worn, "I meant to do exactly as you told me. I was terribly angry, for what you said was mostly true. I had thought much more about getting a housekeeper than I had about having you in particular. And I thought it manly for a man to manage his own home. But when it came to having some one else in your place—I could not do that, Jennie. I've learned a great deal these long winter months here alone, dear. I've learned—"

He paused as if unable to express what was in his heart.

"—better than to let a yellow cat and an iron dog come between me and the dearest girl in the world," he finished, with a tender little smile.

Jennie smiled too, with sudden understanding.

"Do you think you could trust me after the glimpse I gave you of what I can be like?" he asked, very humbly.

"Oh, oh!" she protested, holding out her hands.

He grasped them eagerly, looking deep into her eyes. Then with an exclamation of joy, he slipped the ring on her finger, and gathered her—Chris and all—into his arms.

Later in the afternoon, Mrs. Grey passing through her empty house, paused at the sitting room window.

"For the good land!" she ejaculated in utter astonishment, "if the iron dog ain't been moved! And if Fred Rumford ain't spading up a flower bed along the front of the house, with Jennie and Chris sitting on the end of the piazza bossing it!

"I'd never have believed such a meek little thing could have done it! But I guess I don't need to worry about her, if she does marry a Rumford.

"And I wonder," added the good woman, turning back toward the pantry with a sudden realization of housewifely responsibility, "where under the canopy I could have put that recipe for wedding cake!"

In Hungry New York.

A horse harnessed to a wagon of the New York Poultry Market, loaded with a dozen crates containig six hundred chickens, ran away on the Williamsburg bridge and crashed into the runaway gate at the Brooklyn terminal. The crates were smashed and the chickens set free. The chickens scattered in every direction and many were caught by men and boys who forgot to return them to the driver. Many others were killed or maimed by cars.

INTO THE STOCK POT

RECEPTACLE FOR ALL LEFT-OVER MEATS AND BONES.

Clever Housekeeper Allows Nothing to Go to Waste—Delicious Flavors That May Be Imparted by Judicious Use of Herbs.

All left-over meats and bones in fresh condition can be used for the stock pot. The bones from roast meat and the giblets and carcasses of poultry are especially good. The giblets include not only the gizzard and heart of the fowl, but the neck, the wing pinions, the head and feet. The heads must be skinned, carefully washed, and the bills and eyes cut off; the tiny morsel of brain gives the broth an extra succulency. To clean the feet, first cut off the nails and let them lie in boiling water for ten minutes, after which the skin can easily be removed. But also soak them in salt and water to remove the barnyard odor before putting them on to cook. Chicken and turkey feet are gelatinous and add a good deal to the quality of soup stock. The feet and heads of ducks and geese, however, are not good for the soup. After collecting all the material that can be had, weigh it and add a quart of water to each pound, putting in two or three carrots, one medium-sized onion, several celery stalks, a few sprigs of parsley and salt and pepper. Cook slowly until the meat falls to rags, skimming off grease carefully for, if allowed to remain this will give the stock a rank taste. Strain while hot and when cold cover the vessel and put away in a cool place.

A great many herbs and spices whose usefulness is rarely considered in America are used in France and Italy to obtain the delicate flavors for which the French and Italian dishes are famed. The most important seasoner in these countries is garlic, which with proper use is delicious and with wrong use is atrocious. A garlic pod is made up of a number of little sections called cloves, and one of these, peeled and bruised, is enough to season an immense dish. For a little plat made up for two or three persons, several thin shavings from the clove are enough, and where the palate wishes only the slightest suggestion of the taste, the serving dish or vessel may only be rubbed with the garlic. This flavor is necessary for all sauces that go with spaghetti; a beef steak rubbed with garlic before it is cooked is vastly improved, and two cloves of it put into incisions in a leg of mutton or lamb to be roasted will improve them wonderfully. Two or three common cloves, stuck in an onion and boiled with beef soup add to the flavoring, and if a tablespoonful of Worcestershire is put with lamb or beef to be boiled the taste will be another thing. Hungarian pepper or paprika, is also a very useful commodity in the kitchen, this giving the most delicate flavor to tomato dishes, omelets and salads of all sorts. For potato salads tarragon vinegar is excellent, and chives, which can be grown in a little pot in any kitchen, are invaluable for the piquancy they will give any dish, from an omelet to a fruit salad. Sorrel, which is also easily grown, is delicious for Friday soups made of milk or a rich vegetable stock with cream.

The hors d'oeuvre is not much used by private families in America, but a dish of any of the things used will admirably set off a modest meal. For oysters or clams, cooked or raw, two hours before serving chop two or three shallots fine and put them in a saucedish with salt, pepper, vinegar and oil. Pass this around with the shellfish, supplying small plates for holding the sauce. Another excellent hors d'oeuvre can be made of one green pepper, several slices of bermuda onion, and one firm, fresh tomato. Peel the tomato and denude the pepper of seeds. Then cut the last in fine shreds, putting these on top of a slice of onion laid in turn on a slice of tomato. But do this individual arrangement after the vegetables have marinated in a dressing of olive oil, lemon juice or vinegar and salt and pepper. Anchovies, preserved in oil are famous appetizers, and they are served as they come on a little dish with hard boiled eggs chopped fine, capers and minced parsley.

Nice Fish Dish.

Spanish mackerel is very nice baked with tomato sauce. Remove head, tail and fins, split the fish in two and remove backbone. Season with a little salt and pepper and place in an earthen baking dish, skin side up. Put over it half an ounce of hot melted butter, sprinkle with chopped onion and squeeze half a lemon over it. Put it in the oven for 15 minutes, then pour over it a teacupful of strained and seasoned tomato sauce, bake for 15 minutes longer and serve in the dish it was baked in.

How to Sweep Thread.

In sweeping a carpet it is sometimes difficult to get up long hair or threads of stuff. The best way is to brush lightly round and round instead of straight along, says the Louisville Herald. All threads will then be forced in a sort of ball and can be easily picked off the broom.

Gasoline and Cornmeal.

Dip a stiff brush in gasoline, then in cornmeal, and rub over any soiled worsted garment. You will be surprised to see how beautifully it will clean and freshen it. It also removes spots from rugs and draperies.

BALTIMORE DOCTOR CLAIMS REMARKABLE DISCOVERY MADE

Baltimore, June 21.—As a result of constant concentration and untiring efforts in the field of research, Dr. Warren H. Lewis and his wife, Mrs. Margaret Reed Lewis, the former an associate professor of anatomy in Johns Hopkins Medical School, have discovered the culture of living cells in a fluid of known chemical composition.

Dr. Lewis has been experimenting on the chick in the embyronic condition for some time. By experiment he has finally succeeded in proving that it is possible to cause the growth of cellular substance of which all animals and plants are made up, in saline solutions without the aid of nourishment. The cells, it is believed, make use of food stored up within them.

This is considered a remarkable accomplishment for which scientific men have striven for years. It was not until about 1830 that the cell theory was discovered and since that time there have been many new developments. The theory up to the time of Dr. Lewis' discovery was that animals and plants generate from pre-existing cells and do not rise spontaneously, and this theory has generally been accepted. The object Dr. Lewis had in mind was the more complete and detailed study of different kinds of cells. For this purpose he took part of the intestines, heart, liver, eye and brain, and inserted it in solutions of different salts of a known density.

He found that cells would grow in distilled water with eight-hundredths of one per cent of salt. He also found that the development of the cells would be better of four-hundredths of one per cent of potassium chloride was added to the solution, and still better if some nutrition, such as sugar, was supplieed.

As a result of his experiments not only did the existing cells enlarge but the actual formation of new cells took place without the aid of the network that is found in the plasma, which heretofore was considered necessary. Not only the regular formation of muscle fibre was brought about, but also delicate nerve tissue was formed. Dr. Lewis stated that if the specimen under examination was magnified one million times the actual growth of the fiibre could be seen.

Fruit Omelet.

Separate six eggs and beat very light, add a half teaspoon of salt and three tablespoons of milk. Put into the pan one tablespoon of butter and when hot pour in the omelet. Shake on the hottest part of the stove and when it begins to thicken set it on the grate of the oven to set. Remove and add a small cup of shredded pineapple that has been dusted with sugar, and a teaspoon of sherry. Fold the omelet and serve on a hot plate.

Chicken Kentucky Style.

Take a nice chicken (not too old), place in your kettle with just a little water. When tender put in baking pan with water it is steamed in. Cover with cracker crumbs and bits of butter, salt and pepper to taste and place in oven until a rich brown, basting every little while. Before removing from oven pour in a little cream. Garnish with parsley. Chicken must be opened down the back with wings turned so as to lie flat in the pan.

Fortune Telling

Does not take into consideration the one essential to woman's happiness—womanly health.

The woman who neglects her health is neglecting the very foundation of all good fortune. For without health love loses its lustre and gold is but dross.

Womanly health when lost or impaired may generally be regained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This Prescription has, for over 40 years, been curing delicate, weak, pain-wracked women, by the hundreds of thousands and this too in the privacy of their homes without their having to submit to indelicate questionings and offensively repugnant examinations.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All correspondence held as sacredly confidential. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

DR. PIERCE'S GREAT FAMILY DOCTOR BOOK, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition—1000 pages, answers in Plain English hosts of delicate questions which every woman, single or married, ought to know about. Sent free, in plain wrapper to any address on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover mailing only, or in cloth binding for 31 stamps.

BAKED BEANS, BOSTON STYLE

Method In Vogue in the "Modern Athens" Seemingly Cannot Be Improved On.

Boston has given at least one indispensable dish to the culinary department of every home where good food is relished. Travelers have said that there are beans and beans, but it remains for the Hub city to make of the homely little vegetable a food fit for the gods. To make baked beans soak one and one-half pints small white beans over night in soft water. In the morning drain and parboil, but not enough to crush the beans. Place in the bottom of a bean pot several slices of bacon (salt or fresh pork), then put in about half the beans, over which sprinkle salt, a heaping spoonful of brown sugar or New Orleans molasses, then more slices of the bacon. Over this place the rest of the beans, with the salt, sugar or molasses, and bacon on top. Cover with soft water, and bake at least eight hours, though they are better if baked all day. Add soft water as needed.

Baked beans seem incomplete if served without brown bread. To make this old-fashioned delicacy take one and one-half pints of sour milk, to which should be added one cup of baking molasses, and a scant teaspoonful of soda. Foam separately, then add four cups graham flour, one teaspoonful salt. Put in one pound baking powder cans, steam two and one-half hours and bake half hour.

Oil for Leather.

Leather furniture, especially when placed near the register, is liable to dry and crack. An excellent method of keeping it from looking old and showing cracks is to go over the leather with a soft rag dipped in olive oil and then going over the whole surface again with a dry rag.

It is not necessary to go over the leather more than once in three or four months, just enough to keep it soft.

Chicago Chili Sauce.

One peck ripe tomatoes, peeled and chopped fine, and drained as dry as possibly; two cups chopped onions, two cups chopped celery, two cups sugar, half cup salt, four ounces white mustard seed, one teaspoon ground mace, one teaspoon black pepper, one teaspoon ground cinnamon, four green peppers chopped fine, three pints vinegar. Mix well and put in jars, seal and turn upside down over night.

Do You Read the WANT ADS?

Have you found out what interesting news is contained in the want page? There is a reason why want ads are interesting to everybody. Supply and demand create a market. The man who has an article which he has no further use for, with the assistance of a little want ad, can find readily the other man who is looking for just that article. On the other hand the man who is looking for some particular article can find the man who has it and who it perhaps has not occurred that he can sell it, thus by means of the want ad purchasers and sellers for small articles get together.

Try a Want Ad in The Telegram, it makes no difference what you want, tell it here.

ALREADY WAS GOOD WRITER

Amusing Story of Frank H. Spearman, the Author, and His Young Son.

An amusing story is told of Frank H. Spearman, the author of "Robert Kimberly," of the shock he gave one of the brothers of St. Mary's college, Oakland, Cal. Mr. Spearman sent one of his boys there to school, and, the boy was a great favorite with one of the brothers who was noted for his penmanship, and for his ability to teach it. He prided himself on turning out the best writing pupils of the west, and he thought that Spearman was one of the best of these.

One time Mr. Spearman was talking to him, not knowing that he was the teacher of writing. He said, "If there is one thing that I do want it is for that boy to be a good writer."

"But indeed he is a good writer," the brother began—

"I want him to be a clear, forceful writer, none of your little fancy penpushers."

Upon this the mild mannered brother rushed to his desk, and brought back some specimens of young Spearman's hand writing. He was in a great flurry of excitement. He was used only to compliments.

Mr. Spearman looked surprised for a moment, and then he began to laugh. "Oh!" he said, "I don't care about his penmanship. I meant that I want him to write good English."

MORTGAGE SALE.

Pursuant to the power vested in the mortagee by virtue of a certain mortgage deed, executed by Harriett McAdoo to Southern Life & Trust Company, on the 31st day of December, 1901, and duly recorded in the office of Register of Deeds of Guilford County, N. COTTON LETTER TO J. E. LATHAM.

New Orleans, June 21.—The map shows fair weather in Texas and Oklahoma, no rain except at the coast towns, Galveston and Brownsville, cloudy in the central and eastern States, with general rains there. The map shows rather an important change overnight and prospects today favor unsettled weather in the eastern third of Texas, but generally fair in the western two-thirds of the belt. In the central and eastern States unsettled, showery weather will continue.

Liverpool was quiet and steady. That market will be closed until Monday. Spots were five higher, sales 7,000. Forwardings to mills this week 27,000 against 44,000 last year, and 54,000 year before. A cable said that the Master Spinners' Federation recommended a shutdown by mills every Saturday from July 15 on for 12 weeks.

Our market opened lower and declined on weather selling to 13.03 for October, but near 13c. met a large buying power. It looks more and more as though 13c. for the present is regarded by the trade as the bottom, at least as long as Texas is not thoroughly relieved. At times today the near positions showed strength It is though that the trailing element has liquidated and that if rains continue, prospects for early cotton might be sufficiently affected to give an additional advantage to operators in July and August. Copying Animals In Clay Is One of Knight's Specialties

Photos by American Press Association.

GEORGE C. KNIGHT, a New York sculptor, makes a specialty of animals, and he knows their anatomy as well as other sculptors know the human form. In the pictures above he is shown working on models of a bear and a lion belonging to Mrs. E. H. Harriman. Mr. Knight is also a painter of note, and he was employed by J. Pierpont Morgan recently to make paintings of the blooded dogs in the Morgan kennels.

Cheese Delight.

Toast and butter four pieces of bread and lay in baking dish (casserole), cover with a half pound of grated cheese, then make a cream sauce of butter, one tablespoon, one tablespoon flour, one and one-half cups of rich milk, salt, pepper, and dash of red pepper; pour over the toast and cheese and bake about fifteen minutes.

Saves Floor.

A cotton flannel bag made with shirrstring at the top, and large enough to cover the lower end of the broom, is excellent for sweeping hardwood or painted floors. This saves scratching the floor. Moisten the bag before sweeping.

Josh Billings.

The quaint spelling that helped to make "Josh Billings" famous was natural to him. "Josh" was not an educated man in the academic sense, and was a poor speller to the last. When he started out in the humorous line he observed that the way in which he put together his words—a style that he followed simply because he knew no other—tickled the people and helped to sell his writings, and like the wise, sensible man that he was, despite his literary deficiencies, he stuck to it to the end. Of course, had there not been the keenest, wit, humor and satire behind the "outlandish" spelling, he would have twisted the king's English in vain.

NORTH STATE CAPITAL NEWS

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, June 21.—Frederick W. Ruckstuhl, the well known sculptor who did the excellent busts of Graham and Ransom in the rotunda of the State House, has just been awarded the contract by the State Historical Commission for the bust of John M. Morehead which is also to have a place in one of the niches in the rotunda on the first floor. Mr. Ruckstuhl is also now at work on a bust of Governor Johnson which is to be presented to the state by the Masons and is to have one of the four niches in the rotunda. Both the Johnson and the Morehead busts are to be delivered in October so that by the new year all four of the niches on the first floor of the rotunda will be filled.

The manuscript of "The Letters and Papers of Judge Archibald Murphey" has just been sent to the printers by the State Historical Commission, the manuscript being the work of Mr. William H. Hoyt, a great-grandson of the distinguished statesman and jurist. It will be published in two volumes. One will contain 250 letters dates ranging from 1800 to 1832, the year Judge Murphey died. Of the letters 126 were written by Judge Murphey. The others are from such men as Judge Ruffin, Col. William Polk, General Joseph Graham, W. P. Mangum, Gov. John Branch, Gov. Monford Stokes, Judge Frederick Nash, Geo. E. Badger, Chief Justice John Marshall and others. The second volume will contain Judge Murphey's public papers and addresses including his reports on education, internal improvements and other state matters.

Governor Kitchin recommisisoned today Cary J. Hunter, of Raleigh, and A. C. McAllister, of Asheboro, as members of the State Board of Charities, their terms of office to be six years each.

An order was made today by Governor Kitchin for a special term of Superior court to be held in Pamlico county for one week, beginning August 7, Judge Ferguson presiding. It is to be for civil cases.

The first cotton blooms for this section of the Carolina cotton belt are reported from Johnston county, where they were gathered Monday on the farm of Hamilton and Fish. The crop is developing beautifully throughout this section, the seasons the past two weeks being very conducive to the most rapid development of the plants. All other crops are likewise improving steadily.

The secretary of state directs attention to the fact that out of 2,600 automobiles licensed in North Carolina there are more than 1,000 that have not renewed for the next year and that after June 30 all licenses that have not been renewed will have to be cancelled necessitating the payment by the owners of a $5 new license fee instead of the $1 renewal fee that is all that is necessary if action is taken by June 30.

Special Meetings At Centenary Church.

At 11 o'clock next Sunday morning there will be held at Centenary church two special meetings, one for women and girls, the other for men and boys. The pastor will conduct the regular opening exercises. When the point is reached where the sermon usually comes the men and boys will adjourn to the Sunday school room where they will be addressed by laymen of their own number on practical phases of church work, followed by general discussion. The women and girls will remain in the auditorium where they will be addressed by Mrs. Blanche Carr on "Women and Missions," followed by Mrs. Charles D. McIver on "Women's Opportunity for Christian Service in the Home and in the Sunday School." Music will be furnished by the choir. All members of the church and Sunday school are requested to be present, and the public is invited. Very enjoyable services of this kind were held in this church a year ago, and resulted in great good.

D. M. LITAKER, Pastor.

THE METER SYSTEM MAY BE ADOPTED BY THE COMMISSIONERS

Present Method of Charging Water Consumers Unsatisfactory.

There is a strong possibility that in the near future the city will adopt a meter system for the water consumers and install meters where more than one fixture is used by water consumers. The present system has proved most unsatisfactory and besides is not a fair and business-like way of selling water, it being evident that thousands of gallons of water are being wasted each day.

At present where flat rates are in vogue the consumer is charged, not according to the amount of water used, but according to the number of fixtures. One consumer may have eight fixtures, for instance, and another consumer only one, yet the consumer with one fixture may, and does in many cases, use more water than the consumer having eight fixtures. Then, too, where there are no meters the city has no means of knowing how much water is used in either case. In one case of this kind recently a meter was installed and it was found that more water was consumed in one day than should have been consumed in a months. An investigation revealed the fact that the pipe under the building had burst and a steady stream was pouring out all the time. Had the owner not decided to put in a meter the trouble would not have been found out in months, perhaps.

The city knows just how much it costs to put a gallon of water in the home of a consumer, but has no way of telling what the consumer pays per gallon. In some cases the consumer requires the city to furnish water at a loss, while in other cases a big profit is made.

In short a meter system would make it possible for those who desire to economize to do so, for in many cases consumers would not have to pay as much under the meter system as they are paying at present, and those who are wasteful in their use of water would have to foot the bills.

By adopting the meter system the city would be in a position to figure how much it costs per gallon to supply the consumer and would then be in a position to know how much to charge in order to meet expenses. At present those who use meters pay a sliding scale according to the quantity of water used, the maximum price being 25 cents per 1,000 gallons. From this the scale falls to 10 cents per thousand where as much as 1,000,000 gallons is consumed monthly. It is possible that this rate might be lowered with consumers paying according to the amount used, but not probable. Greensboro at present has an exceptionally low water rate as compared with other cities. In Charlotte where the water supply is not comparable with Greensboro the rate is 40 cents per thousand gallons.

It is believed that the meter system would meet with the approval of the water consumers of the city.

JUNE GROOMS.

They don't amount
To much, I know,
The brides mono-
Polize the show,
But see the flowers
They carry now,
The orange wreath
Upon each brow;
The carriages
In which they ride;
The rings with which
The knots are tied;
The scarf pins that
The ushers get;
The license fee.
And there is yet
The "ten spot" for
The parson, too;
The cabbies' tips
When all is through;
The shower bouquets
For bridesmaids fair;
The diamond sunburst
For her hair.
Yes, all of those
And more, beside,
Are glories that
The grooms provide.
They don't amount
To much, I know,
But lacking them
There'd be no show.

Staples-Abbott.

The following from yesterday's Winston Sentinel will be of interest to Greensboro people:

A marriage of state-wide interest, because of the popularity and prominence of the young people, will be celebrated this evening at six o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Vaughn, in West End, when their niece, Miss Lula Abbott, of Reidsville, will be given in marriage to Mr. Ernest W. Stapes, of Reidsville.

Miss Margaret Vaughn, cousin of the bride-elect, will be maid of honor, and Mr. Crawford Staples, of Reidsville, will be best man.

A number of out-of-town relatives and friends of this popular young couple will be present at the marriage.

Bloxton-Morton.

Yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the residence of the bride's brother-in-law, S. F. Johnson, 1407 Spring Garden street, Miss Margaret Morton became the bride of J. W. Bloxton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. G. Kendrick, Jr., pastor of Forest Avenue Baptist church, in the presence of only close relatives of the contracting parties. The only attendants were DeWitt Morton and Miss Hattie Morton, brother and sister of the bride.

Following the ceremony a course of refreshments were served and Mr. and Mrs. Bloxton left for Statesville and Asheville to spend their honeymoon.

The bride is a lovable young woman and by her gentle disposition and sterling worth had endeared herself to scores of friends in the city and elsewhere. The groom is a prominent business man of this city, being at the head of the firm, J. W. Bloxton & Co.

W. C. T. U. Meets.

The Greensboro W. C. T. U. will meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Carnegie Library.

St. Sing—Adams.

Mr. George I. St. Sing, prescription clerk in the Grissom Drug store, left yesterday for Danville, Va., and will be married there tonight to Miss Nora Lucille Adams. The ceremony will be performed at 9 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Adams. Mr. and Mrs. St. Sing will return Friday to this city and for a short while before starting housekeeping, will live in the apartments of the groom, on West Bragg street.

A Durham Wedding.

Thet following from yesterday's Durham Herald will be of interest to a number of Greensboro people:

Mr. James Williams, a well-known contractor of Greensboro, and Miss Annie Johnson, of this city, were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride, Rev. H. T. Williams, of the Baptist church, officiating.

The ceremony was a surprise. A few friends knew it, but it is news to everybody else. The slight flurry at the station yesterday evening was the first public notice of it. But it was a wedding in which all of the parties have attained prominence. It was very simple, though.

The couple, unattended, entered the parlor to Mendelssohn's Wedding march played by Miss Normal Britt. The minister-brother, of Chase City, improvised a ceremony that was said with a solemn meaningness. Attending the marriage was another brother, Mr. P. C. Williams, of Chapel Hill, and a few of the closest friends of the family were witnesses and guests. Immediately afterwards, they took the train for Greensboro.

Mrs. Williams is the daughter of Engineer J. G. Johnson, of the Seaboard, and is a very well known young lady. Mr. Williams is a large contractor and belongs to a family of especially fine intellect. His brother Prof. H. H. Williams, of the university, affectionately known all over the State as "Horace," is professor of mental and moral philosophy and in his line is one of the most noted men in the country. The couple will live in Greensboro.

Dorworth-Cator.

A beautiful home wedding, charming in its simplicity, was performed yesterday morning at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Whitsett, on Church street, when Miss Mary Louise Cator and Mr. William Jenkins Dorworth were united in marriage. Rev. Melton Clark, pastor of the bride, officiated in the nuptials, which were performed by the use of the beautiful and impressive ring ceremony. Only a few of the most intimate friends of the family were present and the wedding was held quietly on account of the recent ill-health of the bride.

The east parlor of the handsome home where the altar was erected presented a bower-like scene in its attractive decorations of smilax, ferns, and Queen's lace. A handsome altar formed of potted plants was in the center of the room and before this the couple were joined by the holy bonds of wedlock, taking the ring from its bearer, little Miss Louise Winslow.

Mr. and Mrs. Dorworth left immediately for a honeymoon of two weeks among the mountains in the western part of the state. Mr. Dorworth will return to his work here though his bride will be in the west throughout the summer.

Many handsome and costly wedding gifts were bestowed upon the couple, showing the great regard in which they are held in this city. Although he came here from Bellefont, Pa., only a few months ago Mr. Dorworth has shown his sterling value and has gathered about him a host of admiring friends. He has won for his bride a young woman whose lovable disposition and admirable traits have made her popular throughout this city and vicinity.

In Honor of Miss Sloan.

Between the hours of five and seven last evening Mrs. A. R. Perkins was the charming hostess at a delightful reception given at her home, 225 North Park Drive, complimentary to Miss Nettie Sloan, who on June 28 will become the bride of C. J. Tinsley. Over five score of Greensboro's most prominent society members greatly enjoyed the occasion. Mrs. Perkins will be the dame of honor at the wedding of Miss Sloan.

As the guests arrived at the handsome home they were received by little Miss Mary Eliza Perkins and her guest, Miss Louise Hairston, of Norfolk. In the hall Mesdames Fred Joyner, J. Milton Cunningham, and John A. Gilmer welcomed the guests.

The parlor was beautifully decorated, following a color scheme of white and green, which was artistically carried out by the abundant use of well arranged potted plants and cut flowers, sweet peas, and smilax. In this bower of verdant beauty the visitors were met by the hostess, Mrs. Perkins, clad becomingly in a beautiful robe of white lace; the honoree, Miss Sloan, who looked captivatingly lovely in a charming creation of marquisette over blue silk; Mrs. John Shinberger, and Mrs. Sarah Graves, of Wilson.

The guests were later ushered into the dining-room, which was also tastily decorated with the same flowers, following a scheme of pink and green, and with a beautiful effect added by the use of many old and costly pieces of candelabra, silverware, and cut glass. Here many tables were arranged for the comfort of the guests and were presided over by Mesdames H. Blount Hunter, of Norfolk; Robert Denny, and T. J. Murphy and Misses Julia Denny and Mary Callum, who served sandwiches, frappe and cakes to the guests. Besides these dainty refreshments Mesdames Robert Wharton and J. S. Betts presided over the punch bowl and the delicious beverage was served in abundance to the guests throughout the evening.

Mrs. Robert Hairston and little daughter, Miss Louise, of Norfolk, are the house guests of Mrs. Perkins, coming to this city to be present at the reception tendered Miss Sloan.

Miss Annie McIver returned yesterday from a visit to relatives in Spray.

Mrs. Minnie Slater has returned to her home in this city, after a visit to Durham relatives.

Miss Bronna Clymer is in Reidsville, the guest of friends.

Miss Hunter Irvin, of this city, is visiting her brother, Eugene Irvin, in Reidsville.

Miss Minnie Belle Riddick has a small and informal house party at her home on Charlotte street. Miss Riddick's guests are Miss Cornela Dowd of Charlotte, Miss Helen Poteat of Wake Forest, Miss Bessie and Miss Sarah Alderman, of Greensboro.—Asheville Gazette-News.

Miss Gnea Adams will leave today for Asheville where for several days she will attend a house party given by Miss Minnie Beall Riddick.

Mrs. Thomas Crabtree will return today from Rockingham where she has paid an extended visit to relatives.

Mrs. H. Blount Hunter, of Portsmouth, Va., is visiting her sister, Mrs. John Shinberger, on North Park Drive.

Mrs. E. J. Stafford has returned from a visit to her daughter, Mrs. J. M. Apple, of Roanoke, Va.

Mrs. E. R. Michaux and mother, Mrs. Roberson, have gone to the Mt. Airy White Sulphur Springs for a vacation trip.

Mrs. J. H. Prince, who has been visiting in Asheville, has returned home.

Mrs. D. C. Leonard and little son, of High Point, are visiting relatives in the city.

Mrs. G. A. Smith left yesterday for a visit to relatives in Maxton.

Mrs. J. B. Thorpe is recovering after a severe attack of potamaine poisoning.

Curbing For South Elm.

At yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Board of Commissioners Commissioner Foushee was instructed to put down curbing on a portion of South Elm street, the property owners having agreed to put down cement sidewalks at once if the city would lay the curbing. This street has long been neglected and is in bad condition.

SPEED ON PATHS IN GREAT DEMAND

League Managers Hotfoot After Players Who Can Pilfer Sacks.

COBB BIG HELP TO TIGERS.

Detroit Outfielder's Great Base Running Has Won Many Games—Collins of Philadelphia Another—In 1906 White Sox Speed Boys Beat Cubs.

Speed is one of the greatest essentials of modern baseball. It implies quick mental as well as physical action, both offensively and defensively. Take any one of the major league pennant winners within the past decade and you will find that this quality of speed has been strongly evidenced, both individually and collectively. The world's champion Athletics boast the fleet Eddie Collins, champion base stealer of the major leagues in 1910. Ty Cobb's speed as much as his hitting ability helped Hughie Jennings to win three consecutive pennants and is doing much to win another this season. It was the speed of the Chicago White Sox in 1906 that upset the Cubs in a world's series, to the amazement of the country. Fred Clarke's Pirates and Frank Chance's Cubs are always at or near the top of the National league heap because, even if they boast no Collins or Cobb, they both have some fast and heady men.

Sliding to bases is also a necessary accomplishment in a great base runner. How to get into top speed in the quickest possible time and how to slide can only be acquired by constant practice.

There are two motives in sliding. The principal one is to present to the guardian of a station the smallest part of the anatomy, for in such case is the likelihood of being tagged out diminished to a minimum. Furthermore, first base and the plate are the only stations which may be overrun after reaching. At second and third bases the runner must not only touch, but also retain the sack with some part of his person. It is as fatal to overslide or miss by an inch as to be caught midway.

Photos by American Press Association.

THREE VIEWS OF BASE SLIDES.

[No. 1, head slide; No. 2, hook slide; No. 3 another view of hook slide.]

There are many kinds of slides. Most players prefer to slide feet first, for their steel spikes naturally intimidate the fielder. Others usually travel head first, clutching the base with one hand and so holding on more firmly than if they depended solely upon spikes. The player sliding head first has an advantage—outside the natural danger of encountering a foeman's spikes in face, hands, arms or body. He has the bag right before his eyes, whereas one who slides feet first goes more or less by guesswork once he makes his final leap. But, whether sliding head first or feet first, a player must be able to keep an opponent guessing at all times. If a player always slid right into the bag it would be a cinch for the opposition to play him. But if sometimes he slides in from one side, sometimes from another and again between the legs of his opponent, as sometimes happens, then he has just so much advantage.

DAVIS TO BECOME MANAGER.

Athletics' First Baseman Slated to Handle Cleveland Team Next Year.

Harry Davis, the captain of the Philadelphia Americans and one of the most popular players in the junior organization, acknowledges that he is slated to become the manager of the Cleveland team next season.

That Davis would eventually be placed in charge of some team in this league has been a foregone conclusion. The fact that he has been identified for many years with one of the most successful managers in the game is believed to qualify him for such a position. If there is one man in baseball who has had the opportunity to learn the fine points of the game and the duties of a manager it is Davis, who under Connie Mack has proved a great success as field captain.

HARRY DAVIS, WHO IS SLATED TO HANDLE NAPS NEXT YEAR.

There is, of course, a great difference between being the chief lieutenant of a man like Mack and being thrown on his own responsibility, but Davis should succeed even though he does not himself engage in the game

PASSING OF OLD CY YOUNG.

American League Owes Much to Veteran Pitcher Who Will Quit.

The retirement of Cy Young, which seems probable now that Cleveland has let him go, has been predicted for several years, but on each occasion the veteran has come back and shown that he could still deliver the goods. But it was the first time in Young's career that waivers have been asked on him, and it would seem that the old fellow might have been spared this humiliation, since it seems certain that none of the other clubs in the majors will care to carry him and he is not apt to go to the minors.

Cy Young has done much for baseball. He has been one of the pillars of the sport for these many years. There never was a time that he did not give his club his very best services, and the occasions when he has not been of the greatest artistic benefit during the twenty-two seasons of his career have been few and far between indeed.

The American league owes much to Young. When he joined the ranks of the new organization he proved the entering wedge for an influx of players from the old league. Players, magnates and the public always had confidence in old Cy, and there is no doubt that much of the success the American league attained resulted from Young joining the ranks of the new league. Of course that was years ago and under conditions quite different from those existing today, and such deeds are often forgotten in baseball.

Pocket Billiards, Not Pool.

One plays pocket billiards, not pool according to the Illinois State Billiard association. The expression "pool" savors too much of bookmaking. Don't call a cueist a "pool shark," but a pocket billiards expert.

DETROIT CASTOFF DIGS UP A MOST PECULIAR EXCUSE.

Jimmy Casey, who was once the idol of the Detroit fans when he played with the Tigers and now manager of the Fort Wayne club, tells an interesting story on Pitcher Peasley, tried out by the Tigers last spring and turned over to Fort Wayne for development.

"We had three men on the bases and none out, with Peasley pitching, one day," said Casey. "Onslow, the catcher, caught a man off second. The batter could not hit a low ball, and Onslow kept signaling Peasley to put it near his knees. Peasley, however, persisted in keeping it wide.

"I called Peasley to one side and remonstrated with him. 'What are you pitching that way for?' I asked.

"'I thought I would waste on this fellow and fill the bases so that Onslow can catch another man off second,' he replied.

"As an excuse for lack of control that beats anything."

Their Baths

When Mrs. Maltby had been at home and in charge of affairs Hilda had not loomed up so portentous. Hilda had the best heart in the world, but she had likewise a most comprehensive deficiency of English words and her conversation was restricted to a constant smile and the fluent use of "Yes" and "No." This, in view of her superlative cooking and her passion for scrubbing, was easily overlooked.

Maltby had been quite content. When sudden illness removed Mrs. Maltby to the hospital he faced brand new troubles, which he solved by throwing up his hands and letting Hilda run things without any orders from him. He managed to keep an eye on John, aged eight; Edna, aged six, and the baby, somewhere about two and one-half. He knew the children were quite safe with Hilda, who was fond of them.

The Maltbys' close neighbors were much concerned over the desolated household and both Mrs. Corcoran and Mrs. Wilcox ran in frequently to see that affairs were progressing as they should under Hilda's management. The first Saturday of Mrs. Maltby's absence Mrs. Wilcox paused in her dusting with an inspiration.

"My goodness!" she said. "I believe I'd better attend to it! Hilda will be busy with her baking and she has plenty to do, anyhow—it really will be a kindly act!"

Thereupon Mrs. Wilcox put up the duster, tied on a large apron and went over to the Maltbys' house.

She encountered the children in the side yard. "Come," she said beguilingly. "I'll give all of you a nice, hot bath! Think how pleased your father will be—"

There was a concerted shriek from all three. The baby threw down the kitchen spoon, with which he was digging in the sand pile, and stared with indignant eyes as he howled. John regarded her fiercely.

"No!" he protested. "We don't want no baths! We want to play! We had baths!"

"Now, John," said Mrs. Wilcox with severe firmness as she clasped his rebellious hand, "it is wicked to fib! You come right along and the others will follow!"

Mrs. Wilcox had always felt that Mrs. Maltby had never used enough firmness to have perfect discipline over her children and she rejoiced in this opportunity to show them real firmness. First, John, then Edna and then the baby were put into the tub, scrubbed within an inch of their lives and, still yelling, garbed in fresh clothes. Mrs. Wilcox, disheveled, panting and flushed, regarded her red-faced, angry charges with satisfaction.

"You will feel so much better," she told them, soothingly. "Now, keep yourselves clean!"

About two o'clock that afternoon Mr. Corcoran, who lived on the other side of the Maltbys from Mrs. Wilcox, rang the bell.

"Hilda," she said, mechanically, knowing quite well that individual couldn't understand a word, but going through the form, "I thought I'd help you out and give the children their baths."

"Yes," beamed Hilda and departed for her kitchen.

The three Maltby children drew together in a compact bunch and glared at the visitor defiantly. Mrs. Corcoran realized that the youthful human beings, as well as pet dogs and puppies, always act that way when a bath is at hand. They hated water and it couldn't be helped. She put on an ingratiating smile.

"I'm going to make you all nice and clean," she purred, shooing them upstairs. From the mingled wails and shrieks that assailed her ears she detached the remark that they had been bathed.

Mrs. Corcoran always did things thoroughly and the Maltby children had the baths of their lives.

Maltby got home late and tired that night and at the dinner table roused from his abstraction long enough to realize that his youngsters were unusually still. They were eating languidly and were rather pale. Horror clutched his heart—were they coming down with any disease? Out of his mind's chaos he remembered something.

"Before you go to bed," he told them, "dad'll give you all a nice, hot bath and you'll feel better. What the dickens—"

He started in alarm at the bedlam. John precipitated himself at his father from one side and Edna from the other, while the baby wadded his cracker desperately into his eye. They all shrieked tremendously. Then John, with angry tears rolling down his face, got the floor.

"We don't want no bath!" he sobbed helplessly. "First Hilda she gives us one when we get up and then Mrs. Wilcox stopped us building our fort and washed us and then this afternoon Mrs. Corcoran she came over and put us in the tub again an' she rubbed the skin off'n my shoulder. An' now you—"

Maltby gathered his much washed and weeping family into his arms as he comprehended. The first laugh he had had that week crinkled his eyes.

Poverty.

"Poverty is not a crime, you know."

"Say, if you had a wife and lived next door to people who had a larger income than you had you'd change your mind about that."

Record of Municipal Court For a Day

With the passing of sentences against the last of the retailers rounded up by the police in the raids of the past week against the booze artists, Municipal Court was yesterday cleared of the docket of important cases that have occupied the police and the court for some time.

Judge Eure was evidently moved by the plea of the defendant's counsel for leniency in the two cases against Sam Jenkins for retailing and did not punish the young man with a road sentence. It was shown that he had been a good workman until he was led astray by evil associations. The judge gave the boy another chance to turn over a new leaf and dismissed him with a fine and certain restrictions as to his conduct. In one case a fine of $100 and the costs was imposed but the second was dismissed on the payment of the costs and with an agreement not to enter a pool room for two years, to stop drinking, and to commence honest labor as soon as possible.

The sentence giving Gulia Freeman, a negro retailer, three months on the city streets, was changed to a fine of $50 and costs.

Jim Boyd, who was arrested Tuesday as a suspected retailer, was found not guilty at his trial yesterday.

Ran Boyd and Durant Mann, two young white boys, were found guilty of jumping on and off moving trains and were each fined the costs in the case.

John Alexander, a negro laborer, was convicted of trespass in sleeping in Ladd Bros. barn and was taxed with the costs.

Freckle-Face

New Remedy That Removes Freckles or Costs Nothing.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-Face, to try a new remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles, while if it does give you a clear complexion, the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength, from Howard Gardner and one night's treatment will show you how easy it is to rid yourself forever of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask Howard Gardner for the double-strength othine, as this is the only prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Lemon Cake in Three Layers.

Whites of three eggs; one cup sugar, one-fourth cup of butter; beat thoroughly, then add one and a half cups flour with one and a half teaspoons baking powder carefully sifted together, a half teacup of sweet milk, and after a good stirring together divide into three parts for the three layers and bake. Cover the layers with a sauce made as follows: Beat together the following ingredients and cook until thick, stirring constantly: Yolks of two eggs, juice and grated rind of one lemon, one-half cup of sugar, one-fourth cup of butter.

MAY PROVE FATAL

When Will Greensboro People Learn the Importance of It?

Backache is only a simple thing at first;

But when you know 'tis from the kidneys;

That serious kidney troubles follow;

That dropsy, Bright's disease may be the fatal end.

You will gladly profit by the following experience.

'Tis the honest statement of a sufferer who was cured.

Mrs. William Welborn, 720 S. Hamilton St., High Point, N. C., says: "At the time I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was suffering from kidney trouble in its worst form. The complaint had been coming on me gradually for three years. There was a constant ache in the small of my back and the kidney secretions were unnatural. I suffered from headaches and dizzy spells and I slept so poorly at night that when I got up in the morning, I was hardly able to drag myself about. Doan's Kidney Pills were so highly recommended to me that I finally gave them a trial and I cannot fully describe the complete change that took place. I gradually grew better and before long I was well. I have not been troubled since."

WHITE HOUSE NEWS BUREAU FAKE STORIES

Secretary Charles D. Hilles Responsible For The Roosevelt Story—His News Bureau is as Unreliable as Munchausen.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, D. C., June 21.—Some of the most remarkable newspaper stories that have ever been sent out on the wires from Washington—and that is saying a good deal—have been emanating from no less a place than the White House itself during the last couple of weeks. If it is true that Theodore Roosevelt was always in the limelight of the daily press it was because Teddy was doing things which the public was actually interested in, and which it wanted to know about. But if William H. Taft is getting an unusual amount of publicity these days, it is wholly due to a brand new institution which has been established in the White House, in short, a press bureau.

When Charles D. Hilles succeeded Charles D. Norton as secretary to the President a couple of months ago it was pretty well understood here that he was going to run Mr. Taft politically. Nobody had any objection to that for it is well known that the President is not much of a politician himself, and a little help now and then could do no harm. But neither the seasoned politicians nor the correspondents in the capital were prepared for what Hilles actually has done, and many are the criticisms of his unprecedented action in running a theatrical press agenting campaign from the executive office of the chief magistrate of the United States. Sooner or later, it is felt, serious trouble will result. Maybe it has already resulted. This article proposes to relate how some of the rumors which have been circulating throughout the country have been deliberately manufactured in the White House and given out to the reporters with the plain intent to have them written up and thus deceive the public.

Whopper No. 1.—Not long ago President Taft went to Baltimore in order to attend a great Catholic celebration in honor of Cardinal Gibbons. Col. Roosevelt was also invited to attend. Now about a week before the meeting of the President and the ex-President Mr. Hilles caused the reporters at the White House to send to their papers stories which said that Secretary of the Navy Meyer had gone to Oyster Bay to arrange for the "conference" which the President and Mr. Roosevelt were to hold. Thus the impression was made on those of us who read the daily papers and believe what we read, that here was a wonderful political heart-to-heart talk that everybody was forthwith going to sing that familiar hymn entitled, "Harmony in the dear old G. O. P." What were the facts? Mr. Meyer did not go to Oyster Bay at all. It was all a fake!

Whopper number two followed shortly after. At this celebration in honor of Cardinal Gibbons, Roosevelt and Taft did meet, smiled, shook hands, and talked together in public during intervals of the celebration. That was all.

Some one connected with the White House press bureau took aside the reporter who represented the greatest number of newspapers in the United States, and whose association has come to be regarded as usually telling the truth, the Associated Press, that is to say. Exactly what was told this man is not known, but it can be guessed from the Associated Press story which appeared the following morning. It made seasoned Washington politicians gasp at its sheer boldness and audacity. It is said, in short, that Roosevelt had promised Taft his support for renomination in 1912; that the relations between the two men were what they had always been; and that this heavenly harmony which we spoke of a few moments ago was all that could be desired between the sage of Oyster Bay and Taft.

What were the facts? Why, that Taft had met Roosevelt, and that was all. Absolutely no promise of any sort was made by T. R. Score two against the administration press bureau.

As soon as Roosevelt read the article he blazed out with indignation and dictated a statement absolutely denying that there was any truth in the article. But such is the influence of the White House with the daily press that this denial was about half suppressed. The little papers, many of them, did not get it at all, and the big ones either killed it or stuck it away in a corner where it wouldn't be noticed. The fact will ever remain to the eternal memory of C. D Hilles that he sent out a piece which was as false as any advance agent's picture of a second-rate stock company star.

Now for whopper number three. Some one in Washington wrote up a tale that the insurgent Senators were against La Follette and for Taft for President in 1912. This story was widely circulated As far as your correspondent can find out it is not a product of the White House press bureau, but that institution immediately took it up and added many beautiful frills to it. There is no use repeating what Hilles put out to the gullible and dishonest reporters. They knew it wasn't so and he knew it too. It placed the insurgents in a bad light—it made them look as if there was a split in their ranks. The articles were widely circulated and the general impression is that Taft is much stronger than he was a week ago.

What are the facts? Absolutely the contrary. A newspaper man who just wanted to know for his own information went around and interviewed Senators Borah, Bristow, Cummins and Clapp, as being the gentlemen most concerned in having the truth known about themselves. Each one of them gave this reporter a statement which he published in three or four papers to the emphatic effect that they had not stated that they were going to support Taft. Thus a third fairy tale from the White House was nipped in the bud.

Whoever this dispatch had fooled, it did not fool a bunch of half a dozen Washington newspaper men who sat talking it over the night it was printed.

"I see," said one of them, "that our White House press bureau is working overtime these days. Toxin Worm or any of the other noted theatrical press agents have nothing on Mr. Hilles in the way of developing their imaginations or in the matter of disregard of facts. The only distinction between the theatrical press agent with a bum show and Mr. Hilles is that the object of the theatrical press agent is to make the jay part with his dollar and the object of Mr. Hilles is to make the voter part with his vote."

"You sure have it right," said another, and that man Hilles is one of the slickest advertising managers that ever came down the pike with a whole live President under his arm. It doesn't fool me to read his bunk, but think of the suckers it does!"

Teapot Secret.

The real secret in choosing a teapot, be it made of silver, crown derby or even the humble but useful brown "mug," is this: Never buy a teapot with the root of the spout low down in the body of the pot. Let the spout be set high in the body, then you can fill the pot well up without the tea dribbling over, as it never fails to do when having a low-built spout close to the teapot's foundation.

Scrambled Eggs and Sardines.

Remove skin and bone from a box of sardines in oil, add juice of half a lemon, pepper, salt, a teaspoon of olive oil and mix to a soft paste. Prepare six eggs for scrambling, leaving out the white of one. Beat the white very stiff and add it to the paste to lighten it. When the pan is ready and the eggs are turned into it, add the paste and scramble in the usual way.

Care of Woodenware.

Wooden utensils should always be washed directly after they are used, because if dirt and grease are allowed to soak into the substance of the wood it will be impossible to entirely remove them.

To Set Colors.

Before washing any article that will fade wet in strong salt water and let it dry—two coffee cupfuls of salt to ten quarts of water. After washing once in this way they can always be washed without this precaution.

LISTLESS WORK IN WASHINGTON

Bare Quorum of Members Held by the House.

COMMITTEES REMAIN IDLE.

As Only Specified Bills Are to Be Reported by Edict of Democratic Caucus There Is Lack of Interest In Many Measures—Conditions May Be Greatly Changed by December.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, June 21.—(Special.)—a listless sort of way different committees are considering legislation which has been referred to them, but the fact that the edict of the Democratic caucus prevents reporting any save certain specified bills naturally causes a lack of interest in the measures.

When congress meets in December conditions may be changed to such an extent as to render all the work done now nugatory. As a consequence aside from hearings which are given interested persons the work on general legislation amounts to but very little. More than that, there is a bare quorum of members maintained in the house, and the quorum is only there on occasions and in case of an emergency.

When the regular committees meet there is seldom a quorum present, and nearly every chairman has abandoned any attempt to have the legislative committees assemble unless there is real necessity for action, which is not often.

Young Cabinet Members.

Recent additions to the cabinet have reduced the age average of the president's official family. Hitchcock was the youngest man in the cabinet and may yet be, although Stimson and Fisher are both young men for the important positions they hold. Secretary Meyer is a comparatively young man, but does not figure in the class with the other three named.

All of the young men have their work cut out for them. Fisher will find the interior department hard to manage. Hitchcock has already had troubles in the postoffice department, and Stimson finds a fine row in progress between the chief of staff and the adjutant general. This is an old contention and has been in progress whenever there was a brainy adjutant general for years and years.

McCall to Slayden.

"I wish you could have seen a fine specimen of a man," remarked Congressman McCall of Massachusetts to Congressman Slayden of Texas. "He was a colored man, with a remarkably fine face, intelligent and imposing. He weighed only 150 pounds and was the center rush on the college football team, which is something unusual. He is William H. Lewis, recently appointed assistant attorney general."

As Slayden is from the south he did not share the enthusiasm of the man from the north. Perhaps these men could have agreed pretty well on almost any other subject before the country, even the tariff, but on the negro—why, there was a real Mason and Dixon's line between them.

Vegetables on the Yukon.

No one has ever believed that Alaska would amount to anything as a farming region, but our agricultural department is making experiments. And along comes a report from our consul at Dawson saying that they are growing tomatoes under glass in that vicinity. They sell for 30 to 50 cents per pound. Lettuce is grown in the same way and sells for $1 and $2 per dozen bunches. Unless the growing is very expensive there might be a fine opening for truck gardening.

They have been growing vegetables in southern Alaska for a number of years, but it is only lately that agriculture has been tried in the Yukon region. The agricultural department says oats, potatoes and other vegetables can be grown along the Yukon river.

Redfield Made a Hit.

Congressman Redfield of Brooklyn made his first speech last week and discussed the tariff. He made a great hit, particularly with the Democratic leaders, who say that it is one of the greatest speeches on the tariff that has been heard in several years.

Sweets and Beer.

Congressman Bartholdt of St. Louis has always opposed every movement for sumptuary legislation and has maintained that it was against public policy.

"If beer were made sweet," said the man from Missouri, "so that it would be pleasant to the taste of women, there would be nothing in the movement against the brewing of beer. The women don't like it because it has a bitter taste, and that is the reason there is a crusade against beer."

Counting the Cost.

The Republicans are counting the cost of the various investigations which the Democrats of the house have ordered and will charge it up against the saving which was made in the discharge of house employees—that is, unless there are important developments by the investigators. It is asserted that the investigations will not show as much misuse of public funds as the investigators have claimed. But petty grafting has certainly been shown.

MEAT'S TOUGH STEAK TENDER

Meat Pressed Between Two Corrugated Metal Surfaces Is Rendered More Palatable.

The toughest piece of steak that ever loosened a boarder's teeth will be made tender by the machine invented by an Oregon man, who probably occupied a hall bedroom at some time in his life. A corrugated metal base is mounted on a roller, also of corrugated metal and adjustable at different distances from the base. The roller is loosened and one end of the steak thrust under it. It is then tightened till the meat will be well mangled when passing under it and the base portion is slid back and forth several times. The result is that the steak is crushed between these two ridged surfaces and all the spunk taken out of it. After it has been through this process it can be cooked and eaten without fear. The blood that is squeezed out can be made into delicious gravy.

USES FOR OLD NEWSPAPERS

Good Housekeeper Finds Many Ways of Utilizing Discarded Weeklies and Magazines.

I make use of all my newspapers, says a contributor to Suburban Life. First of all, they are good to wipe the bottoms of saucepans with, thus saving the grime of dish towels generally used for this purpose. I spread them on the shelves, both in the pantry and in the cellar, and it is very little work to change them when soiled. All papers that have become soiled, if not too badly, are twisted into a hard ball, then used as kindlings, with a little kerosene.

When the carpets are taken up, smooth papers are the very best thing to put under them when relaying. I line the barrels with newspapers, with several layers on the top, and apples keep enough longer to pay for the trouble. Papers are better than a brush to polish stoves with, and will "shine" the lamp chimneys and window glass better than a cloth. In fact, I find so many uses for them that I cannot think of them all at one time. Save the newspapers!

Do Your Cooking in the Cool

A hot kitchen is little better than a prison in summer. But the range is there, so all the cooking and the washing must be done there, too.

What a relief it would be to move the range where you pleased. You can do this with a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove—cook your dinner out on the porch, if you like. It is the only range that is really portable—that works equally well in any place. There are no connections to be made, as in a gas range; no wiring, as with an electric stove; no sooty flues and ash-filled grates, as with coal or wood.

The long, enameled chimneys carry the heat directly up to saucepans, oven or boiler; you get full value from your fuel, without waste.

New Perfection WICK BLUE FLAME Oil Cook-stove

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys. Handsomely finished throughout. The 2- and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with drop shelves, towel racks, etc.

TEN INNING GAME WENT TO HORNETS

Two Singles, Sacrifice And Error Netted Charlotte One Run And Game.

Charlotte, June 21.—The contest this afternoon went for ten innings and was decidedly the best game of the season. Bauswine and Morrisey were in great form and the hits were scattered on both sides. Morrisey allowed four singles two coming in the fatal tenth, when Agnew singled, Garman sacrificed, Doak errored and Coutts singled sending a Hornet across the rubber with the only run of the game. For the first eight innings the Hornets were three up and three down, not a single man reaching the initial station for keeps.

Bauswine had the better of the pitcher's battle, allowing the three measley singles and these were so far apart that they netted no returns.

The hitting of Agnew and Wofford and the fielding of Agnew, Doyle and Lowman were the features of the contest. Umpire Canny was off on his decisions.

EXCITING GAME AT GREENVILLE WON BY WINSTON

Greenville, June 21.—After the score had been twice tied, Winston won the game in the ninth by the weakening of Griffin, 8 to 6. Boyle, who pitched both games of a double header yesterday, was ineffective today but was taken out in the fourth. The game was exciting and interesting. The two errors of the visitors allowed the locals to tie the score in their half of the eighth.

ELECTRICIANS WIN WELL PLAYED GAME FROM MUSICIANS

Spartanburg, S. C., June 21.—Anderson won a well played game here this afternoon 1 to 0. The visitors fielded perfectly and the errors of the locals did not count in the score. Hill was hit hard in the second inning and Ferrell relieved him. Each left fielder figured in a double play, catching a man at the plate. Two singles, a sacrifice and wild pitch gave the Electricians their one run.

WILL VISIT AMERICA.

First Chinese Warship Will Reach New York Next Month.

Washington, June 21.—The first Chinese warship to visit America will make her way into New York harbor next month. This will be the cruiser Hai Chi, now in British waters, as a participant in the Spithead coronation ceremonies. Only once before has any Chinese vessel visited an American port, and that was in 1880, when a small merchant vessel called at San Francisco. The Hai Chi is the largest vessel in the Chinese navy, having a displacement of 4,300 tons and a speed of twenty-four knots. She is armed with two eight and ten 4.7 guns. The Navy Department is making arrangements to give the Chinese mariners a warm welcome.

NEGRO WILL FACE TWO CHARGES IN MUNIICPAL COURT

Shortly after 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon Viola Chavis, a young negress, appeared at police headquarters greatly incensed and demanded to be allowed to swear out a warrant against Charlie Shaw, who she declared had badly mistreated her, assaulting her with a brick and kicking her down her steps. Both are denizens of Washington alley, a notoriously bad center of the colored population.

Policemen Glenn and Foushee proceeded to assist the girl in wreaking vengeance on her assailant, and going to the scene of the affair they found Charlie not expecting a visit from them, so he was quickly made a prisoner. The prize is especially valuable as the man has been wanted by the police for some time and this morning when the assault is aired in Municipal Court Charlie will also face the charge of running a dance hall without license.

Card of Thanks.

The Philatheas and Baracas of the Moravian church wish to extend sincere and heartfelt thanks to their many friends for hearty co-operation on their part in being present in such large numbers at the lecture given by Rev. Edward Crosland.

The lecture, too, was in keeping with the reputation of the speaker, and to him also, we wish to return our sincere thanks.

RANGE OF RACHEL'S VOICE

In Speaking, the Famous French Actress Had a Compass of Two Full Octaves.

A Prussian prince, a cousin of the German Emperor William I., has left some curious notes upon Rachel, of whom he was a great admirer. These have been quoted in a lecture upon the famous actress. The prince studied her elocution from a musical standpoint and took down notes of her voice as she delivered some of her most effective speeches. He found, for instance, that in a passage of Racine's "Bajazet" she went down to F in the bass. In one of "Andromaque" and another of "Adrienne Lecouvreur" her voice spoke a word on the upper E, and uttered a cry on upper F sharp. Her speaking voice thus had a compass of two full octaves. But, as a rule, he observed that she used only seven notes, consisting of the first seven ascending notes from the bass of the scale of F sharp minor, but with the D sharpened.

It would be curious to know—but the prince does not seem to have ascertained—whether this musical notation of Rachel's speaking voice is rigorous and invariable, and it would be worth a musician's while to apply the same study to some contemporary actors and actresses

No Dust, No Light.

Diffusion of light through the atmosphere is due to thousands of millions of dust-atoms floating in it. The finest dust floats highest, and imparts the tint of blue to the heavens. Were it not for dust the sky by day would appear black, and the moon and stars would be visible. All shadows would then by inky black. Everything would appear differently. It is not "the light" we see, but simply reflections caused by motes of dust, as when a ray of sunlight enters a dark room through a hole in the shutters. Millions of dust particles catch the light, reflecting it back and forth from one another, so making the atmosphere luminous.

CITY MAY HAVE STEAM PLANT FOR PUMPING WATER

At yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Board of Commisioners Commissioner Foushee was authorized to procure plans and specifications for the installation of a steam pumping outfit at the waterworks station. The contract with the Public Service Company for pumping this water will soon expire and the city will either have to put in a steam pumping plant or make a new contract with the company for current for doing the pumping. The company claims that it has been furnishing the current to run the pumps at a loss during the past few years and does not desire to make a new contract at the old rate. Commisioner Foushee was also instructed to secure plans and specifications for a septic tank to be built where the muddy branch sewer empties, below the White Oak Mills. A septic tank has never been constructed on this line of sewerage and there has been frequent complaints from this source.

Commisioner Brown was instructed to have installed an arc light at the corner of Bessemer Avenue and Summit avenue and 60 candle power tungstens on Smith, between Elm and church, and at the corner of Fisher avenue and Keogh streets.

GILBERT PEARSON'S LECTURE TONIGHT.

This evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Smith Memorial building T. Gilbert Pearson, secretary of the Audubon Society, will give a stereopticon lecture on bird life in America. Mr. Pearson is an interesting speaker and is thoroughly familiar with his subject. He has accumulated hundreds of fine views of wild birds and these will be shown tonight. The lecture is free and the public is cordially invited to hear Mr. Pearson.

To Attend Baptist World Alliance.

Rev. R. G. Kendrick, Jr., left last night for Philadelphia to attend the Baptist World Alliance now in session there. He will be absent from his pulpit next Sunday. At 11 a. m. Children's Day exercises will be rendered and Col. F. P. Hobgood, Jr., will make an address.

FREE BREAD AT 12 P. M.

A stranger strolling down the "Bowery in New York" about 12 o'clock the other night was surprised to see a long line of men extending up the street from a certain corner. Upon inquiring found that it was the famous "Fleishman Bread Line" which forms every night at midnight. To each man is given a crust of stale dry bread and a tin of black coffee. Now this meal does not seem very appetizing but to these poor unfortunates it is a feast because they are homeless, friendless and hungry.

You will have an opportunity to see this famous bread distribution on Thursday and Friday as it is one of the features of Chinatown and the Bowery pictures which is the attraction at the Ottoway Theatre.

Chinatown will be shown today and on account of the length of the program the following hours will be observed: From 3 to 5 p. m. and from 7:30 to 11 p. m. During these hours the admission will be 5 and 10 cents. At the other hours during the day from 11 a. m. the regular program will be given and the admission will be 5 cents.

GREATEST MAN IN THE CITY

How Sherlock Holmes Knew Important Individual Was Brought Up In the Country.

"Hah!" exclaimed Sherlock Holmes, Jr.

"Very well, Sherl," said Dr. Whatson, "if you wish it I will hah! But what is the occasion for hahing?"

"Have you noticed that man with the grayish hair and the important manner?"

"Of course. I could not very well help doing so. He would attract attention anywhere."

"He was born in the country and spent his boyhood either on a farm or in a small town."

"What is his name?"

"I don't know."

"If you don't know his name, how have you found out that he was once a country boy? There is no hayseed in his hair, and I can see nothing about him to indicate that he has not always been used to city ways."

"Of course you can't. There isn't anything of that kind about him. But didn't you hear that man who pointed him out a moment ago say he was the greatest man in this great city?"

"Ah, Sherlock, they can't beat you as a deducer. Since you explain it the whole thing is as plain as day."
